

GROUPS IN CONTEXT

A) The location of resources can affect employment in the way that if you live just out of town or out of town you wouldn't want to wake up real early in the morning everyday to travel in to work. Especially if you've only just left school & have no money to buy a car.

So the location of resources can affect employment.

B) Health, Financial support & sense of identity are three very significant needs for the aged & elderly.

As you grow older your ~~immune~~ immune system becomes weaker & you can catch a lot of illnesses a lot easier. That is why it is important for the aged to have their health checked up on by a GP a lot more regular than when these people were younger.

The aged ~~definitely~~ definitely need financial support as around this time is when they will start to retire & with only a small proportion of the elderly living off superannuation, the government needs to step in & help support the aged until whatever aged they live to.

Elderly people have feelings too which in turn means they need a sense of identity.

Not a sense of uselessness or thinking that they are wasting their lives.

That's why some volunteer work is good for the elderly because then they feel as if they are positively contributing to the community.

c) Two groups → Aged & Youth.

Some of the issues that both groups tend to face have been transport, Financial & a sense of belonging.

A sense of belonging is probably the major one as Youth feel like they are an extra to this city & not a part of it.

Youth are always being looked upon as if they are too young to make a difference.

The Aged feel the same way but in a different perspective. They feel as if everyone's telling them they are too old & way past their prime, so what could they contribute that would affect the community positively. So the government has set up management strategies like volunteer work etc. which let the elderly contribute their skills to the community.

The government also decided to build a state park for the youth.

They let us make a difference by designing it our selves & told us that the youth also had to raise some of the money ourselves. Just to make sure this is something the majority of people want & not just the minority.

The youth raise the money & now have a feeling of satisfaction.

And that's how the government uses management strategies to address these issues.
