

2002 HSC Community and Family Studies

- 8 A student is conducting a research project about the effectiveness of local community support services for parents and carers in a town.

Which of the following methods would provide the most appropriate primary data for this project?

- ✓ (A) Randomly surveying households in the town
- (B) Examining statistics from local welfare agencies
- (C) Interviewing Community Health Centre workers
- (D) Interviewing all parents and carers who use support services

Question 8 : % answers correct by band range

