

Question 3

My understanding of the consequences of change have been shaped by the techniques used by various composers by their understanding being put into text which we read & ~~at~~ shape our view of change around it.

By reading "Looking for Alibrandi" I realize that that all changes have consequences this has been displayed to us in the book, by the composer.

Josephine Alibrandi has to make ~~such~~ tough decisions in her last year of school, several big things happen to her in this year her dad comes into her life, she has to do her H.S.C. & she finally finds the truth about nona & accepts her for who she is, by reading the book I realize that we all have to make decisions that cause change & these changes have consequences. That's how my view of change has been shaped by the techniques used by the composer.

Throughout the book Josephine has to make decisions she may or may not want to do all the same she has to make these decisions. These techniques used by the composer has shaped my view of change.

stimulus booklet - change. (related text)

The poem sky high witch is about a lady looking back at the past & remembering what she used to do. Swing one the old hills hoist & preten she was flying, she realises now that she can no longer do it because 1. she is too big & 2. It is no longer morally accepted because she is an adult. All this has helped me understand the consequences of change set out by the various composers