

Compare how two prescribed texts you have studied explore the Tension between humanity and the Nature World.

It is pretty obvious that when humans and nature collide in a confrontation, we have an imbalance in the universe. In both cases of "Brave New World" and "Black Runner", we find that tension in both texts has risen and man kind has won the war.

In the case of 'Brave New World', birth has been eliminated and every human being is born through 'Baknovky's process'. A process where life is born through test tubes, and each person is specially designed for a job in life, a uniform where caste colour is set, or they are happy with each other and their own pathetic existences. In the case of nature, only a population is left at the reservation in 'New Mexico'. A place where the outcasts of human society are left to fend for themselves.

But it is in this place, where we meet the balancer of the natural world. 'John the savage' a boy born in the 'reservation' has come back to the human society and has tried to balance the so called "world" where man is god and science has taken control. In this we find that if science is lead to victory then nature as we know it will cease to exist. It won't need the normal stages of life and death no it won't because science will be able to regenerate anyone, and this thought is scary because as we look at the past, we have seen monster who killed and oppressed people who ~~now~~ are able to live in a free society. ~~Aldous Huxley~~ Aldous Huxley has ~~seen~~ ^{shown} the world ~~that in the case of Blade Runner~~ a prediction which might come true. A prediction so horrible that if the balance of life is altered then we as human beings will become slaves to a world where nature has been destroyed and life as we know it is gone.

We also see that the tense battle between good and evil, has generally affected the levels of nature in 'Blade Runner'. This movie produced by 'Ridley Scott' shows a society where buildings are the trees, robots are the animals and the remaining humans are the prey. It is at this point that we realise that we humans are the destroyer and we create robots, machines etc so they can do our dirty work. When 'Icon', 'Roy', 'Priz' and 'Zora' hijack a space shuttle and take the risk of coming back to earth, tension is released and the whole of society becomes a rivalant just like nature. Richard Deckard, a ex 'blade runner' is assigned to the case. He must find out why they have come back and what they want from the 'Creator'.

This point is very insipid because here is where the question is answered. Was it not almighty god who made the earth and the heaven's in six days? Was it not he who made human beings out of sand and dirt? Yes it was but in both cases, it is his creations who are playing god. In 'Brave New World' and 'Blade Runner', life is created by man and this is where the imbalance of life is distributed. It is here that humanity and the natural world are in a state of tension.

In conclusion, 'Brave New World' and 'Blade Runner' both show that when life is imbalanced, humanity is astray and the natural world is lost.
