

Question 26:

a. The physiological characteristics of an overtrained athlete include:

- fatigue
- loss of motivation
- lack of concentration
- lack of co-ordination
- high heart rate
- high body temperature
- high levels of lactic acid in the muscles.

The athlete becomes less likely to ~~perform~~ perform to the best of their ability and there is a greater chance of them getting an injury.