

Start here.

Q30 Improving performance

B. coaches should consider a rest day if they have a intense training session the day before in order to avoid training so that the athletes could rest their body Or the coach should prepare a light training session if their previous night was intense.

Coaches should progressively increase the training sessions as they get further on in the season.