

a) one group in society that affects the power and authority in the gang life in the community of Australian society.

The gang life is one where most parents wish their children out of.

There is an importance of power and authority. Most reasons for gang members are due to racial difference, and the protection of themselves upon others. Most children who have been brought up in a lower class society where violence is too much of an issue to handle, would expect their child to follow on. Sometimes children are brought up in violence and are prone to it like eating.

Those who are in gang members aren't aware that they are the lower class of the community and bring shame to the society. The power and Authority in the gang life consists of The leader whom is known to be trusted and someone who understands and protect the problem which attempts to be solved.

Gang life is very much so, different to a normal society, and its one which when you've entered there is no choice in when you want to leave.

Some gangs have a reason of coming together to protest problems that need fixing, and some just protest problems to and for the wider community.

The amount of power and authority outside of gang members are those against violence, the government and police officers in fighting crime to prevent harm to those that are innocent. Rules are not made ~~to~~ be broken!
