

Technology, discrimination and socioeconomic status has major effects for those who are deprived to access, and for those who have to suffer it.

There are many groups in society that are deeply disadvantaged, leading to them being deprived of maintaining a ~~the~~ high status in society.

Homeless is a major group, a growing group that face the forces of discrimination on a daily basis.

Socioeconomic status is that of a the lower class, which automatically makes them unworthy.

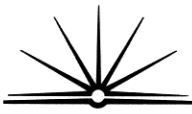

Technology advancement has left the homeless even more disadvantaged as they can never satisfy the demands of society, or can never form an image that lives up to the expectation of society.

Socioeconomic status, discrimination and technology has major effects on the socially valued resources.

Homeless persons with the advancement of technology are being helped by the government programs such as SAAP (Support, Accommodation, Assistance Program) also CHPA (^{Council for} ~~Community~~ Homeless Persons in Australia ~~Program~~ ^{assistance}) and having 22 pilot jet around the areas of homeless and help accommodate them and discuss their past.

Homeless people are discriminated upon, they are seen unworthy of life, social discrimination, where society is scared of them and do not socialise with them, they are also work discriminated, as they are believed that they are incapable to work or lack the skill of understanding, living in a society where there is constant battle between class, Upper class and lower class also the working class the homeless have no class as they are not important enough.

In order to have access to socially valued resources one must have access and be familiar with technology, and must must have a prestige label of class socio economic status.

One must be connected with current affairs, conditions in the nation etc.

The Homeless have none of such luxuries. Not even a place to sleep. Homeless are greatly disadvantaged and they are judged on their performance before they actually perform.

Being discriminated upon is totally normal and being desperate for help and assistance has become like so hard and so they have resorted to giving up.

The Homeless people do not have access to technology. It being the number one absolutely necessary talent to have only because they cannot afford it.

The society's status is like a chain reaction. If one has the money then they have power. If one has knowledge of technology then they would have a considerable social-economic status. If one lacks the skill of knowledge and talent ~~to~~ or skill to use technology they are unworthy of living and will never have access to socially valued resources. The homeless is one group out of many who are discriminated upon by society because of their lack of knowledge, skills and talent. People have grown up on them and so the people have steered. A world of ~~more~~ only worthy ~~for~~ of its treasures is an empty place. Every individual has the right to be treated equally.
