'The churches should act together in all matters except those in which deep differences of conviction compel them to act separately.'

Conference on Faith and Order, 1952

Using the above statement and your own knowledge, describe the impact of Christian ecumenical movements in Australia.

The impact of Christian ecumenical movements in Australia, are the change in denominational^s within christianity. That is the change from one christian to another. For example catholicism to Anglicanism. This has made growth in some denominations and degrade in some. All denominations should work together, as quoted. Unless of extreme cases. If done so, it will make the Christian community much bigger and peaceful. The impact that ecumenical movements have had in Australia, is it allowed knowledge of other denominations and religions, allowing greater peace and less violence between religions/denominations due to peoples knowledge of others.
