

Section II

Question 8

How does art communicate as a system of signs and symbols?

Art communicates in many ways and different ways as a system of signs and symbols.

Freda Kahlo and Van Gogh expressed the way they felt through their paintings, they painted what they go through or what they have already been through, or they paint the way they feel and think while they are painting. They paint their life. You look at artists' paintings and you see symbols and signs which communicate through their audiences and us as audiences see what they are going through, the pain or the happiness. There are a lot of ~~the~~ signs and symbols like how Frida Kahlo and her self portrait paintings are about how she feels and what she is going through she will paint her self with thorns on her head symbolising what Jesus wore on his head when he got crucified it shows us as audiences what she is ~~is~~ going through the pain and the hurt. IT is very important to show us as audiences who are trying to understand what the ~~the~~ artist is trying to say to us and what the painting means.

Section II

Question 8

The artist history is also important to make the audiences understand why he/she is being like this or what ~~she~~ he/she is trying to say

Section II

Question 8.

So they Symbol and ~~is~~ give Signs to us to make us understand more about who they are or what they mean ~~with~~ with their paintings.