

3) a) i) Manlius's being under arms, and the assassination of Cicero, and a slaughter of the Nobles.

ii) held at night at the house of Marcus Laeca, for the purpose of Catiline & his companions to discuss their treacherous plans.

iii) "to greet me in the morning". Roman Noblemen were often greeted each morning by their patrons to be doled out with jobs or food and money.

However here, the two knights Catiline sent to greet Cicero in the morning ~~was~~ really intended to kill him.

iv) Because if he leaves ~~this~~ he will take his companions with him and a dangerous Gilge water of the State will be drained from the city. If Catiline were to be killed however, all his companions would remain behind in the State.
